HEART DISEASE

is becoming very common in every community and the sudden deaths resulting warn us each year to be on our guard. Disease takes on different forms, among which we notice Palpitation, Enlargement, Dyspepsia, Constipation or Costiveness, Irregularities of the Blood, Nervousness, Shortness of Breath, Pain in the Side or Chest, Dizziness, Sleeplessness, Faintness, Sinking Sensation of the Stomach and Weakness of the Action of the Heart.

These forms of Heart Disease have been cured by Dr. Graves' Heart Regulator and we do not hesitate to name a few of them again. Any form of Heart Disease will readily yield to its use, and we give you to know in any case where the Heart Regulator has been taken properly and the party advised a marked benefit.

Our agent, on application, will furnish you with our circular, giving full description of the disease, and also giving a list of testimonials of cures, and if you are troubled with this complaint, you should not fail to call on Agent and get a circular, who has given the testimonials, write them and see what they say.

We have sold many thousand bottles of the Heart Regulator, and the demand is increasing every year, and continues to give perfect satisfaction in every case where taken according to directions.

The price of the Heart Regulator is $1.00 per bottle, and can be obtained of our agent.

WHOSE OX IS GORED?

The remarkable toning down of the Democratic Liberal journals in their more recent comments upon the Credit Mobilier disclosures, affords such a striking contrast to the vehement clamor with which the charge of corruption was started during the campaign, that one is reminded of the old story of the Squire whose opinion was so suddenly modified upon learning whose ox it was that had been gored. The unfortunate predicament in which the investigation has placed Mr. James Brooks, an acknowledged Democratic leader in Congress, proprietor of a prominent Democratic organ, and a Director appointed by the Government to guard its interests as connected with the affairs of the Pacific Railway, has undoubtedly exerted a quieting effect upon those same Democratic journals which were so recently clamoring for the exposure of corruption. And the predicament of Mr. Brooks and of his party is so peculiarly unhappy as almost to excite compassion for their discomfiture. The Credit Mobilier outcry was started by Democrats on the track of Speaker Blaine, a prominent Republican, and the disclosures, while completely vindicating the intended victim, present, as the most humiliating revelation, the conduct of Mr. James Brooks, a prominent Democrat. Never were engineers more disastrously "hoist by their own petard."

When report first connected the name of Mr. Brooks with this business, he bounced upon his feet on the floor of the House and poured out a torrent of indignant and passionate denial, in the course of which he said:

"I have never owned, directly, or indirectly, a single dollar or share of the Credit Mobilier. * * The reason why I did not own it * * was because as Government Director I could not own any stock in the Union Pacific Railroad Company, and I did not feel it right or proper, when the laws of the country forbid me to own stock in the Pacific Railroad Company, to own indirectly, in any other form, the stock of the Credit Mobilier."

Unfortunately for Mr. Brooks it was established by cumulative testimony that he did buy of Durant 100 shares of Credit Mobilier, subsequently receiving 50 more shares for his services for the Company, which were entered in the name of his son-in-law, who also received with the above, $22 shares of stock and five first mortgage bonds of the Union Pacific Railroad, and shortly after a dividend of $9,000 which he paid over to Brooks. For the above, Brooks had paid $16,000 and Neilson $5,233, which he says he borrowed of Dillon, a friend of Brooks.

This is a hard exhibit, but perhaps the most exasperating feature has been the fact that the N. Y. Tribune, which started the accusations and which has successively apologized to distinguished Republicans slandered in this connection, has felt called upon to consider the case of Mr. Brooks and to figure up the pecuniary results of his "operations" in Credit Mobilier stock as follows:

Mr. Crane says the Credit Mobilier shares were worth at least 200 at the time when Mr. Brooks bought the 100 shares in December, 1867, and Durant testifies that he had actually been offered that amount for them. They had risen to at least 350 when the additional 50 shares were obtained at par and interest, Feb. 29, 1868. The five first mortgage bonds were worth not less than 50 cents on a dollar. Mr. Brooks (or Neilson) therefore paid $15,233 (including the stock transferred to Dillon in satisfaction of the loan) and received for it:

100 shares Credit Mobilier at 200	$20,000
50 shares Credit Mobilier at 350	17,500
Cash dividend	9,000
Mortgage bonds at 50	2,500
150 shares U. P. R. R. stock at 50	41,100
Total	$91,8[illegible]

As a courteous recognition of the political minority, Mr. James Brooks, a Democrat, was appointed one of the Government Directors to look after the people's interests during the construction of the Pacific Railroad; how well he discharged his duty to the public may be a matter of surmise, but how thoroughly he looked after the pecuniary interests of Mr. James Brooks may be inferred from the figures given above.

We understand that the Legislative delegation from Penobscot County, at a recent meeting in Augusta, resolved to recommend to the Governor the appointment of John S. Kimball, Esq., of this city, as State Insurance Commissioner, Hon. S. C. Hatch alone declining to participate in this action, as contrary to his convictions of duty. We presume no one would dispute the right of members of the Legislature to the expression of their individual preferences; but if it was intended that the Governor should regard this caucus vote as expressing the views of the people of this section, it is eminently proper to state that in taking such action the gentlemen have not represented the wishes of their constituents in this city or county. The peculiar qualifications of Hon. A. W. Paine for the duties of the office, his unremitting interest in the work confided to him and the ability which has been markedly recognized abroad, are fully appreciated in this community; and the implied disparagement of his services by members of the Legislature will meet no sympathy here.

The office is a most important one and it is not of a political character, and, as we have said before, if Governor Perham consults only the best interests of the State and the efficiency of the Department, we have no doubt that he will continue Mr. Paine in the position which he is filling so usefully.

The universal verdict now is that Representative Brooks is the kindest of fathers-in-law; Senator Wilson, the most considerate of husbands; and Speaker Blaine the most generous of brothers. Grant's goodness to his relatives have ceased to be talked about.—[Commercial.

The above is but a sample, grammatically and otherwise, of numerous squibs with which the Commercial has sought to evade the disastrous exposure of Brooks, by linking his name with those of prominent Republicans. The spiteful innuendoes above will mislead no one who reads the news.

It is proved that James Brooks was wading knee-deep in the profits of a corporation that was dividing the funds which he, as a Government Director, was in duty bound to protect.

Mr. Wilson never received a cent from the Credit Mobilier, but reduced his scanty means some eight hundred dollars to avoid any connection with it. His wife has been in her grave for several years and the Commercial invades the church-yard for a slur at her husband.

The reference to Speaker Blaine is characteristic. The public have heard nothing about his generosity to his brother. If the Commercial has, why does it not print? The general public do remember, however, a notable and merited castigation administered by the Speaker in Norombega last season, and they regard this making up of wry faces by the Commercial as a very silly and impotent revenge.

An Augusta correspondent writes: "There is a growing feeling of disgust among the agricultural members at the recent wire pulling by which Secretary Goodale was displaced. It would not require a very great effort to abolish the Board of Agriculture and create a Commissioner of Agriculture instead, as has been suggested by several.

The London stock market was depressed Monday by rumors of complications between England and Russia, on the Khiva question.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

One of the most frequent causes of complaint, and in the case of several of the Southern States, one of the most fruitful sources of controversy, has been the disposition on the part of officials of the United States Civil Service to interfere or assume an undue prominence in matters of local administration. We have had numerous examples of this mischievous tendency in various portions of the reconstructed section, and even in the Northern States there has been more or less dissatisfaction with the propensity of Federal officials for assuming positions of influence and authority in local politics. The President has made up his mind that a reform is necessary and has proceeded to secure it by acting with his characteristic promptitude and directness. He believes that a man can very seldom serve two masters and serve both well, that the Government is entitled to the service of its officers unimpaired by "entangling alliances" with State administration, and has notified incumbents of such dual positions that they must make choice of one or the other. In an Executive Order issued on Friday last, the President informs all Federal office-holders, that with some reasonable exceptions which are specified, that hereafter the acceptance or holding of a local office will be regarded and treated as a vacation of the Federal office holden by such person. The important bearing of this order upon the practical reform of the civil service will be at once apparent. The full text of the document is as follows:

EXECUTIVE ORDER.

Whereas, It has been brought to the notice of the President of the United States that many persons holding civil office by appointment from him, or otherwise under the Constitution and laws of the United States, while holding such Federal positions accept offices under the authority of the States and Territories in which they reside, or of municipal corporations under the charters and ordinances of such corporations, thereby assuming the duties of the State, Territorial or municipal office at the same time that they are charged with the duties of the civil office held under Federal authority, and,

Whereas, It is believed that with few exceptions the holding of two such offices by the same person is incompatible with a due and faithful discharge of the duties of either office; that it frequently gives rise to great inconvenience and often results in detriment to the public service, and, moreover, is not in harmony with the genius of the Government.

In view of the premises, therefore, the President has deemed it proper thus and hereby to give public notice that from and after the 4th day of March, A. D 1873, except as herein specified, persons holding any Federal civil office, by appointment under the Constitution and laws of the United States, will be expected while holding such office not to accept or hold any office under any State or territorial government, or under the charter or ordinance of any municipal corporation; and further, that the acceptance or continued holding of any such State, Territorial or municipal office, whether elective or by appointment, by any person holding civil office as aforesaid under the Government of the United States, other than judicial officers under the Constitution of the United States, will be deemed a vacation of the federal office holden by such person, and will be taken to be and will be treated as a resignation of such federal officer of his commission or appointment in the service of the United States. The offices of Justices of the Peace, Notary Public, and of Commissioners to take the acknowledgment of deeds or to administer oaths shall not be deemed within the provision of this order, and are excepted from its operations and may be held by federal officers. The appointment of Deputy Marshal of the United States may be conferred upon Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs and Deputy Postmasters, the emoluments of whose office does not exceed $600 per annum, are also excepted from the operations of this order and may accept and hold appointments under State, Territorial or municipal authority, provided the same be found not to interfere with the discharge of their duties as postmasters. The heads of departments and other officers of the Government who have the appointment of subordinate officers are required to take notice of this order and to see to the enforcement of its provisions and terms within the sphere of their respective departments or offices, and as relates to the several persons holding appointments under them respectively.

By order of the President.

HAMILTON FISH,
Secretary of State.

The sale of seats in the United States Senate is not a very pleasant affair to people who cherish aspirations in the direction of virtue in politics. The revelations concerning the manner in which Mr. Caldwell came to represent Kansas in the higher branch of the National Legislature are particularly disgusting, if they are true. Mr. Caldwell has been investigated by a Senate committee, the principal witness against him being Mr. Sidney Clarke, who was also his competitor. This gentleman is of the opinion that Mr. Caldwell's election cost him $75,000, and that he would have spent a quarter of a million rather than have missed it. Kansas legislators seem to be high priced, even if they only live to confirm the saying that "every man has his price." But Mr. Caldwell was flush of greenbacks and he purchased his honors. Mr. Clarke does not appear to figure in a much better light, for he acknowledges that he spent $15,000 in the effort to be elected before he became convinced that his struggle was hopeless. We believe that there is plenty of law to punish men for this sort of bribery, and we confess that nothing would be much more pleasant than to see the law so promptly and severely vindicated that no man will hereafter dare to think a buying a seat in our highest legislative body.

A STATE INSURANCE SCHEME. Virginia proposes to try the experiment of insurance—life and fire—by the State, a bill having been introduced for the establishment of a "bureau" with home office in Richmond and a branch in each Senatorial district. All other companies are excluded from doing business in the State, and the Commonwealth is sole stockholder and recipient of profits. The Lieutenant-Governor is made President of the bureau, and a citizen insuring shall be credited with the amount of his poll tax and twenty-five per cent of the tax on his real estate in payment of premiums. Ex-Governor Wise is credited with the authorship of the scheme, and the doors which it opens for corruption are neither few nor narrow.

DEATH OF DR. LEAVITT. Our readers have already been made aware by telegraph of the death of the Rev. Dr. Joshua Leavitt, the well-known theologian and journalist. The event occurred on Thursday evening, at the residence of his son in New York, the immediate cause being paralysis. The attack was a sudden one, and from the time of his seizure Dr. Leavitt was apparently unconscious and unable to recognize any one. He was born in the town of Heath, Franklin County, Mass., in September 1794, and was consequently over seventy-eight years of age. He was graduated at Yale in 1841. He then taught awhile, after which he studied law in Northampton, Mass., and opened an office in Putney, Vt. Soon afterward he went to New Haven and entered the Theological Seminary. Finishing his course, he settled in Stratford, Conn., where he remained in a very successful ministry for four years. In 1819, while a student of law in Heath, Mr. Leavitt organized one of the first Sabbath Schools in Western Massachusetts. He was at one time editor of the New York Evangelist, which paper he founded, and afterwards of the Emancipator, which he removed to Boston. At the time of his death he was one of the associate editors of the New York Independent.

ALABAMA. A prominent Republican Senator in the State of Alabama writes that business in the Legislature of that State is at a standstill in consequence of the refusal of Lieutenant-Governor McKinstry, President of the Senate, to proceed with legislation until the contest for the seats from Marengo and Conecuh counties are decided. McKinstry holds that the views of Attorney-General Williams's compromise are not binding until that contest is finally determined, while a majority of the Senators claim that they will go forward with the business and settle the disputed seats at their own pleasure. No arrangement has been offered, although McKinstry has proposed a compromise.

It is suggested that the United States can do a good thing by quietly declining to confirm Judges Busteed and Humphreys for their new positions, they having resigned in order to exchange places. Popular opinion in the District of Columbia is reported against Busteed coming there, while the Alabamians claim to have no use for Humphreys.

Trains are again running on time on the Hudson River Railroad.

Mens Conscia Recti.

There's a story is told,
Of a man, who, of old,
Wished all other men for to know,
That the shoes which he made
Were indeed a good trade,
And thorough from heel to toe;
So he placed on his sign
The following line—
"Mens conscia recti," a motto,
Which his rival in trade,
Tried to steal ready made,
Which he certainly hadn't have ought to.

For knowing naught of any learned tongue,
He soon procured, and o'er his own door hung,
A sign which brought a twinkle into each correct eye,
Inscribed with "Men's and Women's conscia recti!"

This short story, HENDERSON, the Tonsorialist, commends to the notice of any who, by ignorantly imitating the style of other advertisers, expose their own deficiencies in polite letters, and he does this through no fear of imitation in his own specialties, feeling his style of high art to be like the highest effort of poetical genius in any language idiomatic, untranslatable and inimitable.

Consumption can be Cured.

SCHENCK'S PULMONIC SYRUP,
SCHENCK'S SEAWEED TONIC,
SCHENCK'S MANDRAKE PILLS,

Are the only medicines that will cure Pulmonary Consumption.

Sometimes medicines that will stop a cough will often occasion the death of the patient. It locks up the liver, stops the circulation of the blood, hemorrhage follows, and, in fact, clogging the action of the very organs that caused the cough.

Liver complaint and dyspepsia are the causes of two thirds of the cases of consumption. Many are now complaining with dull pain in the side, the bowels sometimes costive and sometimes too loose, tongue coated, pain in the shoulder blade, feeling sometimes very restless, and at other times drowsy; the food that is taken lies heavily on the stomach, accompanied with acidity and belching of wind. These symptoms usually originate from a disordered condition of the stomach or a torpid liver. Persons so affected, if they take one or two heavy colds, and if the cough in these cases be suddenly stopped, the lungs, liver and stomach clog, and remain torpid and inactive, and before the patient is aware of his situation, the lungs are a mass of sores, and ulcerated, and death is the inevitable result.

Schenck's Pulmonic Syrup is an expectorant which does not contain any opium, nor anything calculated to check a cough suddenly.

First Class Hotel in Augusta for Sale!

The undersigned being compelled by ill health to retire from business, will sell the well known hotel in Augusta, Me., called

THE MANSION HOUSE,

Together with the Furniture and Livery Stables connected with the same, at a fair valuation. The house is three stories high, containing eighty rooms. The dining room will seat one hundred and fifty persons. A large and commodious office, with reading room and parlors, &c. Connected with the hotel are two good stables with stalls for fifty horses. It is centrally situated on State street, on a square lot comprising more than two acres, fronting on State street, and bounded on the north by Court street and on the west by Chapel street, making a good investment in real estate. This is no ordinary opportunity for a person who desires to engage in a "paying hotel business", as the books of the house for the past eight years will demonstrate. Any one wishing to purchase is invited to inspect the premises and examine the books. A large portion of the purchase money may remain on mortgage.
If the premises are not sold by the 15th of February next the undersigned will lease the real estate or one-half interest, giving to the responsible parties for a term of years. I will sell the whole estate or one-half interest, giving to the purchaser the entire control of the business.

FROM NEW YORK.
TWEED TRIAL—GARVEY CROSS-EXAMINED

NEW YORK, Jan. 20. In the Tweed trial in New York Monday, Garvey, the Ring plasterer, was cross-examined at length touching his own implication in the frauds. The counsel made strong efforts to extort from the witness the fact he was to be given immunity in consideration of turning State's evidence. Witness did not acknowledge that any such arrangement existed, but said he was told by Mr. O'Conor that if he told the truth on the stand no harm would come to him. The witness further testified that he left the country after the Ring revelations under the assumed name of Donnell, and returned under the name of Andrew Jaffers, landing at Boston, and quietly coming on to New York. He confessed that he was slightly culpable, but ... that he should tell the truth, regardless of consequences, which assertion provoked considerable laughter in the court.

FROM WASHINGTON.
THE CALDWELL BRIBERY CASE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. In the Caldwell election case to-day the committee debated the propriety of forcing the production of a private letter between Gov. Carney and ex-Congressman Clarke. Messrs. Trumbull and Anthony were opposed to such action, but after secret consultation the letter was demanded and read. It details corrupt bargains in the Caldwell election and called for an investigation. A tedious cross-examination of Carney was confirmatory of former testimony that a great deal of money changed hands at the election of Caldwell.

FROM THE PACIFIC COAST.
A BATTLE WITH THE MODOCS—FORTY MEN KILLED AND WOUNDED—THE TROOPS RETREAT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 20. A dispatch from Yreka to-day states that a message had just arrived from the head quarters of Gen. Wheaton, commanding the troops in the action against the Modoc Indians. A severe battle was fought on Friday last, by the troops under the command of Gen'l Wheaton, consisting of 250 regulars, two companies of Oregon volunteers, 25 California riflemen, under Capt. Fairchild, and a few Klamoth Indians, making altogether about 400 men. The battle took place near the eastern shore of Tule Lake. Capt. Bernard went round to the east side and to the east of Capt. Jack's position was to have been made by Captain Bernard on the east and by Gen'l Wheaton on the southwest, under cover of the howitzers. On Friday morning Captain Bernard opened the battle against Capt. Jack, who had about 200 warriors concealed among the rocks along a line of two miles in length.

Gen'l Wheaton heard the firing and had no alternative but to move to the aid of Captain Bernard without the fire of the howitzer. The troops fought an unseen foe from 8 in the morning till dark, under a terrific fire, during which scarcely an Indian was seen.

THE LOSS

to the troops was 41 killed and wounded. The loss of the Modocs is unknown. The troops were finally obliged to retreat to their camps. Bernard's forces bore the brunt of the battle and suffered terribly. All the cavalry fought on foot. The leaders say that a thousand men will be required to dislodge Captain Jack from the lava beds.

The troops for the present will only try to prevent the Modocs from raiding on the settlements, and will wait for reinforcements.

HEMLOCK EXPORTS. Our correspondent "Nopen" writes that during the year 1872 there were sent from Winn station 73,871 sides of leather manufactured by Hess, Poor & Co. at their Winn tannery, which with a few sides of leather (about 3,000 lbs) amounts to 1,773,357 lbs., or nearly 886 tons, the freight on which has cost not far from $6,900. About sixty hides are required to load a car. The smallest quantity was sent away in May, June, July, August and September; the largest quantity in April. The Medway leather is sent from Mattawamkeag, all to Boston.— There were also sent from Winn in 1872, 151,427 last blocks of all sizes. These were mostly from L. C. Grant & Son, and sent to parties in this city, by whom they were shipped out of the State to be turned and finished into lasts. Large quantities of railroad ties and posts have been sent from Winn station during the past year to parties in this city and elsewhere.

THE MILO OUTRAGE. A correspondent at Milo writes that the parties charged with the outrage upon a young girl in that town New Year's eve—Henry D. Savage, Jason Bradeen and Charles Parrigo—were arraigned before W. E. Gould, Esq., Trial Justice, on Wednesday, 15th inst, W. P. Young, Esq., appeared for the State, and Hon. C. A. Everett and Henry Hudson, Esq., for respondents. After hearing the testimony for the prosecution, the respondents waived their right to a defense before the Trial Justice, who ordered them to recognize for their appearance at the February Term of the Supreme Judicial Court for Piscataquis County, to answer to the charge of rape.

The victim of the outrage, though nearly twenty years of age is, our correspondent writes, simply a child in intellect. Her story shows that no chloroform was used, as at first stated, and though she suffered extremely from the cold to which she was exposed neither hands nor feet were frozen. The statement published that no measures had been taken, up to the 7th inst., to bring the perpetrators of the outrage to justice, was incorrect, as immediate steps were taken to secure them, though the authorities did not deem it advisable to make the fact public and hence did not contradict the report.

CRIMINALS DON'T LIKE IT. A New York despatch says the criminal ... there have united in a movement to break down, if possible, the new jury law providing for intelligent jurors. One of them remarked that it would ruin the criminal practice if allowed to stand. The only hope the ring thieves have of escaping conviction is in breaking down this new law. Before signing it Gov. Hoffman submitted this measure to the members of the Court of Appeals, who suggested an amendment, which was incorporated in the act.

CUBA AFFAIRS. It is reported in Havana that a large expedition of friends of the Cuban revolutionists, with arms and ammunition, had landed safely near Guantanamo. Havana Government advices deny that any filibustering expedition from San Domingo has landed at Carney. The Cubans, nevertheless, assert that their friends in the interior have received a fresh supply of war material. The Captain-General has been authorized to purchase a large quantity of Rifles in the United States. The political aspects of the Island are assuming a threatening attitude.

INVESTMENT BONDS.

The Northern Pacific Railroad Company now has in full operation, with regular daily trains, 391 miles of road. A distance of nearly 200 miles more is constructed. The Minnesota Section, immediately on its completion, entered upon a satisfactory business, including local traffic and the large carrying-trade of the Northwestern British Settlements and the Hudson's Bay Company. The recently completed section of sixty-five miles, on the Pacific Coast, at once commands a profitable business between Puget Sound and the Columbia River, heretofore done by coastwise steamers. On the opening of spring, with more than 500 miles of Road in regular operation, the Company will control the extensive and productive trade of the Upper Missouri, much of Montana and the Northwest. The earnings of the Road for 1873 will be large.

Arrangements for pushing construction vigorously the coming year are progressing satisfactorily.

Of the nearly Ten Million acres of land accruing to the Company in connection with the portion of Road now virtually constructed, some Two Million acres, of excellent average quality, are in market, and their sale and settlement progressing. The average price thus far realized is $5.66 per acre—which is at the rate of more than $100 000 per mile of road for the whole grant.

The Company has already begun the process of redeeming and cancelling its First Mortgage Gold Bonds, as they are now being received at 1.10 in payment and exchange for the Company's Lands.

With these accomplished results and most favorable prospects, the Company is now selling its First Mortgage 7-30 Bonds for the purpose of completing its line of road. We recommend them as a well secured and unusually profitable investment. They have the following elements of strength and safety: They are the obligation of a strong corporation; they are a First Mortgage on the road, its Rights of way, Telegraph line, Equipments and Franchises, and a first lien on its Net Earnings. In addition to this usually sufficient security, there is pledged for the payment of principal and interest, a Land Grant of 12,800 acres per mile of road through the States, and 25,600 through the Territories. The rate of interest (seven and three-tenths per cent gold) is equal now to about 8¼ currency. Gold checks for the semi-annual interest on the Registered Bonds are mailed to the Post Office address of the owner.

All marketable securities are received in exchange on most favorable terms. For sale by Banks and Bankers generally.

VACCINATION.—Believing that the inefficiency of vaccination results from the long time which human vaccine virus has been propagated from one person to another, all the way from ten to seventy years, and the most reliable security from that loathsome disease, the small-pox, is where the virus has been taken direct from the heifer, animal to the human system, in whom the ... protecting power was first discovered, and when so used, is usually the most mild and perfect in action, I have received, direct from the animal, and shall receive additional supplies weekly, taken by my own ... The Last Half Million
OF THE
7 PER CENT. GOLD BONDS ISSUED BY THE
CHICAGO, DANVILLE & VINCENNES
Railroad Company,

Are now offered for sale, about $3,500,000 having already been sold.

The road (212 miles in length) is the air-line low grade route to Chicago from the Indiana Coal Fields.

That portion of the road (132 miles) which has been in operation since December, 1871, has earned, over and above all expenses, its interest obligation upon Bonds for the same time, being but $180,416.67 gold.

The net earnings increased from $15,853.45, in December, to $28,395.62, in October the latter being at the rate of $340,785.44 per annum. The total interest liability upon the total issue of Bonds upon the whole is $260,000 gold. The 132 miles are, therefore, earning, net, more than enough to pay interest upon the entire bonded debt upon the 212 miles.

These figures give the best assurance to careful investors, that the First Mortgage Bonds of this Company are SAFE BEYOND QUESTION.

The Indiana Division, giving direct access to the coal mines, and completing the connection between them and Chicago, will be in operation by January 1st, and the earnings of the road will be thenceforth largely increased.

The company is not in debt, and owns a large and very valuable real estate in Chicago, beside having an equipment of twenty-four first-class locomotives and about 800 cars.

The Bonds are at the rate of $18,500 per mile, are for $1,000 each, and have forty years to run, the interest (at 7 per cent gold), payable in New York, April 1st, and October 1st.

The present price is 90 and interest from October 1st, the Company reserving the right to advance the price at any time.

Early orders are suggested in order to secure any portion of this extremely desirable loan.

A GEOLOGICAL MADRIGAL.

(After Shenstone.)

BY BRET HARTE.

I have found out a gift for my fair;
I know where the fossils abound,
Where the footprints of saurians declare
That the monsters once walked in the ground.
It is not alone—in liminal speech—
We'll walk like Darwinian apes,
But in the old Tertiary time,
We'll wander, my love, evermore.

I will show you the mammoth track
Right wandering Amboli made,
Or the dinkotis, that, further back,
In the old Potsdam sandstone are laid.
The shells are to be discarded for
The Pleistocene as embalmed—
In his Colitic prime and his bloom,
Ig-nam-us-saic and ichthyoid!

You wished—I remember it well,
And I heed it to the letter for the wish—
For a pet for eyesight or shell
And a whole not dephasic fish;
And oh! if our love-nest contains
Even a vertebrate for us to dine,
Or Paleozoic remains,
The same, in your lover's free gift!

Then come, love, and never say nay,
But call all your maidenly fears;
We'll range, in some summer's day,
The coast of millions of years;
And though the Darwinian plan
Is an evolve-ist and a deve-lopist shock,
We'll find the beginning of man
Our fossil ancestors in rock!

JINGLING GEORDIE.

AN AUSTRALIAN SKETCH.

"I wonder when John will be back! Oh, I wonder when?" thought Lizzie Armstrong, a pretty, trim north-country lass, as she stood by the open window of the Australian farm-house, round which clustered a large leaved creeper, with great yellow flowers, the size of bird-and darning, that I know if the blacks or bushrangers tried to carry off any of father's sheep. John would fight for them, though there were a hundred against him. But there how foolish I am, there's no danger about John.

Lizzie was tossing, and, as she thought, of her lover's danger, she put down her tidy on its stand, sat down with one hand on the pile of snowy white linen and thought over John's last words before he started for the sheep run of the two miles off. Not a syllable, not a tone of the voice had escaped her; for were not the words and music of them printed on her heart? "Lizzie, darling, I have served your father well and faithfully these seven years now, and when I return I mean to ask him for you. I think he likes me, and, though he is a hard stern man, and despises my poor John, and my mother, who suffered for it, as he did it, I do not think he will refuse, for he knows I love you dearly, and he knows you love me."

There had been a kiss between several of these words, and these kisses, too, Lizzie had not forgotten. Presently she rose, lighted out of the great sun sinking fast in a dewy ocean of cloud, leaned her cheek on her hand, and still thought of John.

All at once the face of a brown-bearded man pushed through the leaves, and its light grew to hers. Yes, it was John himself! She gave a little startled scream, then the two lovers stood face to face at the window and he held her hands. There were many inarticulate words expressive of joy and delight.

"Why, John, this is the very spot where we parted."

"Do you think I forgot it, Lizzie?"

"Nine weeks ago; oh, such long weeks, John, they have been. But what has brought you back, dear, so soon? Nothing bad I hope."

The young bailiff's face fell.

"Yes, bad, Lizzie—very bad. But Wilson is losing sheep on his run every other day, and we can find no tracks of them. There are no black fellows near there, and a bushranger doesn't, as you know, been seen in this part of the colony for three years. We have had no floods. Bailiff—my, and you could go back to Gilbert's Run, and see about the sheep. I am to look after him, and to ask whether we shall change our runs, and see if that betters it. Like more sense, Lizzie, then I'll go and put my horse, and come in and lay the whole affair before your father."

Thrice kiss grew into several.

"I thought I heard talking in the parlor, Lizzie, as I came round; who is with your father?"

"Why, it's that horrid Mr. Travers from Melbourne. He came yesterday, after some wool."

Geordie's face darkened. "He has come after you, Lizzie. I hate that fellow. But don't look out. Good by, dearest, I shall feel it the more and be in directly."

The diminutive bailiff, a pale, bright-eyed chap of twenty-two and caught hold of Lizzie's companion. It was Lizzie's younger sister.

"Lizzie," said she, "father and Mr. Travers have been talking about you. Mr. Travers wants to marry you, and he says he's very rich, and they're drinking the champagne he brought like anything. Oh, he's such a beautiful singer, Lizzie, and he's bought you such a beautiful lace silk gown."

"Don't tease me, Susan," said Lizzie ironing vexedly, wishing it was over Mr. Travers' face.

"Lizzie, my lass," shouted a harsh, coarse, north-country voice, from the next room, "come in to my silver tankard, and come and see the beautiful gown Mr. Travers has brought there."

"I'll declare to leave it I'll tear it to pieces," said Lizzie, her eyes kindling as she went to a cupboard and brought out the jankard, a great thing ago at an agricultural show at Carlisle. When she entered the parlor she found her father and the detestible sleek, vulgar, talkative young Mr. Travers seated at a rough table on which stood two empty champagne bottles. Both men looked this red, and Mr. Travers had one leg thrown carelessly over the corner of a chair and on such the sat. He at once unbuckled himself, and gave with vulgar politeness to hand a third to Lizzie, an act of politeness which her father greeted with a saturnine smile.

"They bear the news, lass, faster Travers has brought. The Melbourne Argus says that Jingling Geordie, the famous bushranger, has created excess over to our part, because our police had said that we shouldn't put up so easy with his ways as the New South Wales police have done. As he's a lish yen supple of a lad he'll no be no use side long. Well, but the lads to be stuck up like those sort o'jokes over t'other way. I bet ye he'll regret before he's ridden many miles and lost his horse."

"Pray take my chair, my dear Miss Armstrong," said Travers, with a manner he considered of the first elegance.

But the invitation appeared to have no charm for Lizzie.

"Maggen, lass, thou'dst like to see the present Mr. Travers has brought thee," interposed her father, with an intimating stoop as he could manage.

"I must first see to the fowls, father, and feed the chickens," said Lizzie, with a toss of the head, that did not augur well for Mr. Travers's hopes, and off she ran.

"Ah, they're little cattle, e'e lasses," said old Armstrong, as the door slammed behind her. "You must get quietly near them, or they're off like a dart, gentle; they're shy birds, and there's no rule like trapping 'em.—Winning a woman is far all the world like catching a colt; you shake on oats, and just as you think you've got the bridle all but on, away she goes, with a kick of her heels, and you've got to begin again. But who's that?" (There was a knock at the door.) "Come in, man, come in. Why, it's John. How is't John?"

John entered with a glower at Travers and a warm greeting to the old farmer.

"And how are the ship (sheep)? All going well?"

"Not so well as I could wish, Mr. Armstrong. Robert Wilson has lost six in a fortnight, and how they're going we can't any of us even guess."

The farmer's face seemed to contract, and his mouth quivered. "Missee," he said, with his teeth closed, "you and he have been kangaroo hunting when you ought to have been minding them. You mind what the Scripter says about the hireling that loved not his ship because he was a hireling? That's the way all my profits go. You've let these, and been idling and hunting, or some mischief or other; but I'll stop it out of your wages, man, never fear."

John's brows knit, and he lips compressed. "You know no one but you, Mr. Armstrong, dare call me an idler. We have not been hunting at all; we have kept as close to our work as if we had been slaves."

"Mebbe, then," said the old man scornfully, "some black fellars have taken them from under your noses, and you hadn't the mettle to try and save them. Why, I fired came out and began to serve, I had to fight for my master's ship. Look here," Armstrong tore open his waistcoat and showed two broad scars where black men's spears had pierced his chest. "But you lads are now't, now.—Ye're all for lying about mucking, and making a fortune sooner than by the time we could earn enough to buy a sheep-run; but why do you come back now? You've come here, I 'spect, only to get a word with my darter, who I can tell you plainly, is for a richer man than you."

Travers lolled back in his chair, and sipped his champagne with infinite complacency.—Already he felt himself the son-in-law of the rich colonist.

John did not condescend to notice this man's impertinence, but grew turned on Armstrong. "Mr. Armstrong," he said, "I have served you faithfully for seven years, and during that time, except by flood and murrain, you know you haven't lost ten sheep. I have not fought for you, because there has been no one to fight; but when the time came, I dare say should shop better pluck than this pen-driver here."

"I won't have you sneaking away from work," said Armstrong, and trying to wheedle away my darter. She is only fit for a rich man, who can make a lady of her, and you're wasting your time to think of her; and mark ye this, and mark it well, Mr. John Churton, I'll not stand much more of your stuck-up ways and gentlefolk's airs. I'm a plain man myself a Cumberland farmer's son, and I want men who'll work, and keep my ship together, and earn their wages. If you don't think my pay enough, and the hut is not warm for your delicate skin, you can go when you like. Your quarter's up next week, and you have your remedy. I'll stand none of your fine gentlemen's airs. They may go to Lunnun, though they didn't stand much for you there; but they won't do at Gilsland."

"Very well, sir," said John, whose hand was already on the door handle. "You have said it, and so it shall be; but remember that I came back here only from a sense of duty. If I had been perishing in the bush, and the sheep had been in danger, I wouldn't have come back here, even to put my dying hand in Lizzie's."

I was of course foolish enough to say something about you and Lizzie when the wool had sold well, a year ago; but now, I guess it. Here is her future husband. You can go."

John kept a grim look on the old man, though his face was pale, to.

"I'll come for my wages to-morrow," said Churton, "and start for Melbourne by the inland. There is the revolver and the rifle I have sent me; your rifle is in the kitchen."

"Go and be hanged. I'll have no more fine gentlemen here."

"God bless you—ta ta," said Travers, with his champagne to his lips.

As Churton opened the door, Lizzie Armstrong rushed into his arms, and hid her tearful face upon her shoulder.

"Oh, that's it, is it?" said Armstrong, bursting into a rage. "Let go my darter, you sir, and don't darken my doors more than once more, when you come for the wages you haven't earned!"

One passionate kiss, and Churton released. Lizzie and slammed the door behind him.

"And well shut o' him," said the old farmer. "Go to your room, Lizzie. I'll have no blubbering here for a stuck-up fine gentleman. And now, them Travers, drink to my toast—Bonny auld Cumberland, its lads and lasses," and if you can sing John Peel, let's have it, for it stirs my blood as well as one of the auld Border songs."

An hour later, and just before the place was bolted up for the night, there came a tremendous blow at the front door, as if with the butt end of a heavy whip or pistol.

"It's that sneaking fellow John come to beg my pardon, I suppose," said old Armstrong. "I thought he had more spirit."

It was getting dark, and snatching up a great flaring tallow candle, he threw open the door.

It was not John. It was a short, thick set, bearded man, mounted on a strong, black horse, spotted with foam, its eyes bloodshot, and its mouth in a thick lather. The rider wore a deep trimmed wide awake, and a digger's stained red shirt, over which screamed a variety of heavy cables of gold chain. He had a short double-barrelled rifle slung at his back, and a six shooter stuck on either side of the digger's belt. His long boots were splashed with mud. He was a hard, ill-favored man, with a thick, matted black beard, small, quick eyes, thin, pale lips, and prominent cruel looking cheek-bones. He swung himself lightly from his horse, and stood with one hand on his mare's tasselled mane.

"You've maybe heard of Jingling Geordie, the bushranger," said the man, in a hoarse, harsh voice; "has he been here lately?"

"I've not seen owt of the rascal," said Armstrong. "You're not one of the police, methinks, and are after him? You'll doubtless want a night's rest? Walk in."

"And take some fizz with us, like a jolly good fellow," encouraged Travers.

"Maybe you have never seen Geordie?" asked the man again, with a dry laugh, as he led up his horse.

"What is he like?"

"Why, to tell the truth, he is the very image of me," said the man, pulling out a revolver, as quick as lightning, and cocking it. "Now I am him, and he's me; and we're partners in one trade. Now, I mean to stick you up; so, up with you."

The old man sullenly, Travers pale and trembling, instantly threw up their arms in approved Australian manner, and backed into the parlor, as the bushranger pushed them before him into the room, first locking the front door, and turning the key after him.

"Now, gentlemen," he said, throwing himself resolutely into a chair, and tossing off the champagne, "I'm glad you've got no money, for I never stick up those parties to-day, and I've as much as I can carry; but what I do want is some grub and hush, a night's shake-down, and a certain good mare I've heard of. Call the whole crew—"

"If you've got a revolver on you, fire at him," whispered the old man to Travers, as they stood with their arms up.

"Come, no whispering," said Geordie, "or I shall be forced to knock through one of you; and I've blood enough on my hands already. Do as I tell you, old man; quick, and pipe all hands—I want to give them a short sermon. Never mind my horse; he's good for nothing; he can go to the devil his own way."

Armstrong did as he was bid, and called Lizzie. Lizzie had already heard the alarm, and hidden herself in a wood cupboard in the kitchen; Lizzie came down stairs pale and crying; she gave just one scream, when she saw the rough man, whom she guessed at once to be after no good; then, like a brave girl, collected herself for the worst.

"So this is the whole crew, all told. So far so good. You needn't be afraid, my pretty lass. I won't hurt you!" said the bushranger. "Come, hold man, what shooting irons have you about you? It is always as well in these cases to be careful."

As he said this the man began to rummage Armstrong's pockets with all the practised care of a custom house searcher.

"I tell you I don't carry any."

"But don't you wish you did?" said the fellow with an odious sardonic grin. "Yes, I see that by the red in your eyes, and the white of your lips. You keep your temper, old man. I won't touch your shiners. I've got enough of my own. And don't you be frightened, miss; I'm not going to hurt the old father, though he does look mischief. As for that counter jumper, I won't search him, for I can have his basely like place to use a pistol, recollect he had one."

Lizzie shuddered as she saw the wretch's rough hands laid upon her father, a man of such rough temper and such uncontrollable passions, and every moment she expected to see a blow struck, and to hear the return shot that would stretch her father dead at her feet. "Oh, that John were here!" she thought, and the next moment she trembled to think what might have happened had her lover flown at the ruffian, as he would surely have done.

"Come, now," said Geordie, "one of you and we'll go round and look all the doors. I don't want any of the neighbors to know who's here and we'll have it all snug to ourselves. Come, I say, one of you, d'ye hear, and no nonsense, for I'm rough and ready, as you'll pretty soon find, if my blood once gets up. Where are the guns and powder?"

"Well, I suppose, we must e'en make the best of a bad bargain," said Armstrong. "So come, and we'll shut the doors first. Lizzie, this gentleman will want some supper; you look the back door, and see to it, while we go up stairs and collect the guns. He is here, we are at his mercy, and we must just make things as pleasant as we can. He knows well enough I would kick if I could. Travers you come with us up stairs, and help to overhaul, and you Lizzie, cook some steaks and get some toast ready."

Travers, with a very pale face said he would rather stop where he was. He was evidently overcome with fear. All at once Geordie turned his cold, keen eyes upon him, drew a revolver, and held it to his head.

"Come," he said, "none of that. I know your game. You want to sneak behind, and then, when we are busy up there, you'll make a rush for it and ride off for the police. No, not my gentleman, you go first, or I'll make cold meat of you at one touch of the trigger."

With very shaky steps Travers staggered forward, and the three men proceeded up stairs, having first locked the lower doors.

The moment she was left alone in the kitchen, Lizzie opened the wood cupboard door, and called softly to her sister. She had resolved on a bold step.

"There is no danger now, Kitty, but keep there till he is at his ease, then I want you to do something that may save us all."

"I'll do it, Lizzie, whatever it is," was the reply. "But, oh! don't let that dreadful man see me. I'm so afraid of him. I'm sure he is going to kill us all."
